Dartmouth depended more on second, third and fourth place men, and this is third and fourth place men, and this is why it came through, as usual, first in the field. Maine relied on its stars and these fellows did not always shine with their usual luster. But even if they had, Maine would not have won the first leg on the new trophy, for the New Hampshire athletes were too versatile. IN TENTH SECTION. OF FAST PLAYING

A Pitchers' Battle Between Weafer and Davidson Was Excellent

A declining sun was on its way to supper, the fireflies were lighting their in-candescents for the night and the evening chores were due for attention when the battle of Saturday afternoon between the Italian A. C. and Goddard seminary came to a 10-inning close with the Berlin street prides at the long end of a 2 to 1 score A pitchers' battle between old Joe Weafer and Tommie Davidson, a home-rur ar-gument between Ricciarelli and Connor and a long, grim and exceptional contest that gave every appearance of having struck a mid-season stride. Only home-run scoring was in vogue up to the 10th frame when Watchful Will Maiden, ever alive to opportunities, sneaked home on a wild throw which Charlie Hoernle had gunned at his battery mate, at the umpire and at the second sack. A good-sized crowd of fans who had waited three weeks for an unadulterated sample of 1916 baseball certainly got the full worth of its money. The Italians played errorless ball, which tion assembled from ball yard organizations that never had so very much in wholly excusable, contributed by Coach league series. are qualified to predict. There wasn't much in the scoring line until Connor polled out a long one in the fourth. It looked like two bases until the onion rolled under the center field fence and then it began to take on the semblance of a four-ply wallop. In the very next inning, Ricciarelli slapped the same ball over into the public playground and there was nothing to do but watch him complete the circuit. Jack Claire

Brief Decisions.

If Saturday's line-up is preserved throughout the season, the Italians are apt to be a big factor in the state championship race.

Other Saturday results: West Rutland high 14, Bellows Falls high 8; People's academy 7, Newport high 6 (11 innings); St. Albans high 11, Platisburg high 0; Chelsea high 10, Thetford high 0; Burr & Burton seminary 19, North Bennington high 2; Rutland high 9, Burlington high 3; Black River academy 9, Windsor high
